Innovation
We reinvent possibility to unleash our greatest potential.
The Ripple Effect of Our Mission

2018 was a spectacular year, and we’re so thankful you were a part of it. It’s with great pride we share some highlights of the year: We placed 337 expertly-trained assistance dogs and 47 working dogs with other agencies; our professional trainers made over 1,200 in-person visits with graduate teams as part of our on-going support program; and our community helped raise over $20 million in revenue plus $15.4 million from bequests.

It is your dedication to our mission that makes Canine Companions a strong and steadfast organization that not only makes an impact on individuals, but also on the families, friends and communities of our graduate teams. There is a ripple effect — so many lives are touched by one Canine Companions assistance dog. And because of supporters like you, we are truly changing lives.

Each year we evaluate how we’ve grown, determine where we can improve and explore better ways to serve our community. As part of this process, we’ve identified six core values that will be incorporated in all aspects of our mission. In addition, we are working with our national board of directors to develop a comprehensive five-year strategic plan that will allow us to reach our long-range goals, which include more teams, dynamic growth and scalability, and sustainable funding.

To help achieve our ambitious goals, we kicked off a national capital campaign for a new campus in our North Central Region. Through this campaign, we received support and donations from across the country, with each donor contributing to our national mission. We also graduated our first class of service dogs trained to assist veterans to mitigate the symptoms of post-traumatic stress disorder at our Jean and Charles Schulz Campus. These are big accomplishments, and we couldn’t have achieved them without you!

As you read the 2018 annual report, take a moment to reflect on the lives you’ve changed: the young boy who has help with his leg braces, the woman who is alerted to the fire alarm and the veteran who is now comfortable socializing in public.

You made this possible, and we thank you. We have much more to accomplish together, and we look forward to working with you every step of the way to expand the ripples of our mission.

Sincerely,

Paige Mazzoni,
CEO

National Board Chair
Changing Lives
One Assistance Dog at a Time

Canine Companions for Independence assistance dogs are expertly trained in over 40 commands to help children, adults and veterans with disabilities live more independent lives. Milestones of excellence

In 2018, Canine Companions reached an important milestone by matching our 6,000th assistance dog. From our first team to our 6,000th, Canine Companions graduates have benefited from our extraordinary program.

Shawn & Melissa

“Team Training keeps getting better. They keep learning new ways to teach us and help us out. It’s an overwhelming experience, a tough two weeks, but I feel comfortable here and ready to learn.”

Julian & Gemini

“Gemini makes me feel like a regular kid,” says Julian. “She gives me licks and lets me pet her. But she also is a hard worker who helps me walk and encourages me to keep trying when I feel discouraged.”

One Family Makes a Big Impact

Erika Dold began volunteering several years ago. “My love of animals and the opportunity to really give back led me to Canine Companions,” explains Erika.

Eventually, she and her husband, Dr. Chris Dold, a veterinarian and SeaWorld Orlando’s chief zoological officer, made the decision to become volunteer puppy raisers and wanted to share the experience with their children. It was an opportunity to give back to their community as a family.

“This means the world to us,” says Erika. “To teach our kids kindness, selflessness and learning how to make a difference in the lives of those with disabilities.”

The Dolds raised Canine Companions puppy Natalia, who was matched as a hearing dog with Scott of Charlotte, NC. Expertly trained in nearly 40 commands, Natalia is able to alert Scott to fire alarms, cell phones, voices and more. The effort of the Dold family is allowing Scott to live a more independent and full life.

“Natalia makes me feel confident, and my life has changed since I was matched with her. I am so grateful for puppy raisers. They are the lifeline of this organization,” says Scott.

Raising puppies for Canine Companions becomes a way of life for many of our volunteers. In 2018, the Dolds raised Canine Companions puppy Hale. He was the third puppy they have raised for our organization.

While it is always bittersweet to say goodbye, the Dolds know the puppies are destined for greater things — to be matched with a person with a disability.

“When you see it come full circle, it’s so rewarding,” explains Erika. “Raising a puppy is a part of our daily lives. It’s the biggest gift and a team effort for our family.”

Serving Those Who Have Served Our Country

As a result of multiple deployments to Iraq and Afghanistan, Marine Corps veteran Bruce has pain from fibromyalgia and post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) which have impacted his life for many years.

Hoping to alleviate his symptoms, Bruce applied for a service dog from Canine Companions. In October, he was matched with Service Dog Wembley and graduated with our first class of veterans with PTSD. The results of this placement have been powerful.

“Because Wembley has been trained in specific commands, such as ‘front,’ ‘light,’ ‘behind’ and nightmare interruption, my PTSD symptoms no longer control my life,” explains Bruce.

Canine Companions dogs in our PTSD program are selected three months into professional training and spend an additional three to six months in specialized training with our instructors. They learn how to enter a room ahead of their handler to turn on lights, retrieve items from a distance, interrupt nightmares and symptoms of anxiety, as well as perform positional commands that help their handler feel more comfortable in public.

Bruce says, “Wembley is now an integral part of my daily life. His presence and invaluable training have reduced my stress, anger and anxiety which previously closed me out of normal life experiences with my family and friends.”

In order to serve more veterans like Bruce, we broke ground on a state-of-the-art training facility at the Jean and Charles Schulz Campus. This building is specifically designed to support veterans with PTSD and will allow us to better support our veteran applicants. We are also proud to share that in 2019 we have expanded our programs for veterans with PTSD to our Northeast and South Central Regions.

Canine Companions continues to honor and seek out ways to support our veterans. We are grateful for their service and sacrifice.

Who we serve
All branches of the U.S. military are represented in our active graduate veteran teams. We will continue to support these teams and provide all follow-up services free of charge throughout the life of the team.

Bringing Healing and Smiles to Mayo Clinic

Facility Dog Luna started her career at Mayo Clinic in November 2018. She is the first Canine Companions assistance dog to join Mayo and apply her expert training to assist doctors, therapists and staff. She knows over 40 commands which can be modified to fit a patient’s specific needs. “In just a short time, her impact has been enormous,” says Lisa, an occupational therapy supervisor with Mayo Clinic and Luna’s handler.

Luna’s work has been primarily in rehabilitation services and at the cancer center. “Patients may be coming for undesirable reasons, but they brighten up and look forward to working with her,” shares Lisa. Luna helps motivate cardiac patients to move more, physical therapy patients to exercise, pediatric patients to develop motor skills and cancer patients to heal emotionally.

Recently, a palliative care physician asked if Luna could visit a patient in the intensive care unit. When Lisa and Luna arrived, the patient was sitting in a chair surrounded by his family. Lisa explains, “I had Luna do the ‘visit’ command, and she gently placed her head on his lap while he continued petting her. A huge smile came over the patient’s face as he hugged and talked to Luna.” The patient died the next morning. “It meant so much to his family to see him enjoying his final moments,” says Lisa. “They were so grateful to see him laughing and doing something he loved.”

It’s exciting to see Luna and her interactions with the patients, families and staff. While her work has just begun, Mayo Clinic staff is already discussing her involvement in other areas of the hospital. Lisa explains, “Luna is a very bright spot in our organization. She adds a depth to our care we can’t otherwise provide, on a physical or on an emotional level.”

What is the impact of a facility dog?

Canine Companions facility dogs are working across the country. With their professional training in over 40 commands, they can help with patients’ rehabilitation, recovery and overall wellness.
On a cold day in October, Rex Riggs experienced a life-changing moment. He was invited to play golf with a friend, who also happened to be a Canine Companions board member. At each hole, the golfers were enthusiastically greeted by a Canine Companions volunteer and puppy. Being a veterinarian, this not only brought a smile to Rex’s face, it also caused him to want to learn more about our mission. His love for animals and our work helping people with disabilities was a perfect combination.

Fast forward 17 years — Rex and his wife, Nancy, have been actively involved with Canine Companions for almost two decades. They have done everything from volunteering on campus and serving as regional board members, to donating on an annual basis. Rex also provides his services by completing physical exams on soon-to-be-placed Canine Companions assistance dogs, speaking to graduates on animal care and serving as the North Central Region’s consultant on veterinary matters.

Having made their first donation in 2003, Rex and Nancy’s commitment and financial support to Canine Companions has continued to grow. Most recently, they made a significant contribution to the national capital campaign to build a new campus for the North Central Region. Their gift gives them naming rights to the new veterinary clinic on campus — something very close to their hearts!

“The benefits of a new campus are immeasurable — a centralized area for all aspects of the work where the graduates can ‘live’ together under one roof during the two-week training sessions,” explains Rex.

There have been so many great memories through the years — graduations, Team Trainings, meeting with volunteers, graduates and staff. The Riggs have witnessed and contributed to the many lives that have been changed because of our expertly-trained assistance dogs. “The impact these special dogs have on both children and adults with disabilities is amazing,” says Nancy.

Building a New Campus

Our new campus in the North Central Region will continue to further our mission of providing expertly-trained assistance dogs to children, adults and veterans with disabilities — free of charge. Located in New Albany, OH, this campus will not only impact the 14 states that make up the North Central Region, but the entire country. The campus will grow the number of people that we can serve, set a new standard for kennels and training space across the country, and provide more research opportunities to ensure that we continue to provide the highest quality, healthiest and most successful assistance dog partnerships possible.

A Better Understanding of Our Dogs

Canine Companions continues to focus research efforts on the health, genetics, behavior and cognition of the puppies and dogs in our program. Partners like Duke University, the University of Arizona and Whistle help transform the data we collect into meaningful results to cultivate the healthiest and most skilled assistance dogs possible.

Canine Companions and Whistle have an ongoing partnership that includes the use of a unique technology to better understand our dogs’ behavior and activity levels. The collar-mounted activity device is able to monitor the amount of activity, play and sleep that dogs experience. It can also help better identify dogs with the greatest chance for success as assistance dogs. Whistle’s technology is a unique approach to ensure our dogs are calm, comfortable and resting, even when we cannot be with them.

The Whistle Activity Monitor has been used at Canine Companions to help pinpoint ways to modify specific environments, including our kennel facilities, to ensure the dogs’ well-being and rest. Building on previous research at Canine Companions, we have found that dogs that rest more at night are more likely to graduate as an assistance dog. Lower activity levels and more rest also leads to lower cortisol (stress hormone) levels. Our research has also followed the activity levels and rest periods of dogs as they mature from puppies to adult working dogs. “Similar to humans, sleep and exercise are important to a dog’s physical and mental health,” says Dr. Brenda Kennedy, director of canine health and research. “If those cycles can be monitored for significant changes throughout puppyhood and professional training, we can use the data to tease out important ways to better support the wellness and success of our dogs.”

“Non-invasive and easy-to-use technologies like Whistle Activity Monitors provide Canine Companions insight into the success of their assistance dog teams,” says Collette Burton, CEO at Whistle. “We are proud to partner with Canine Companions. Research collaborations like ours will help Canine Companions unleash potential for a greater number of successful, life-changing assistance dog partnerships.”

Volunteer Puppy Raisers & Breeder Caretakers

We have over 1,360 volunteers who make an enormous contribution to our mission. Because of their dedication, support and passion, Canine Companions puppies are prepared for professional training and our breeder dogs are healthy and strong. These volunteers are critical to our foundation, the success of our assistance dogs and our ability to provide these dogs free of charge to people with disabilities.

Duke University Study Helps Identify Early Traits

Canine Companions for Independence and Duke University are working on a joint research study to identify traits and behaviors that can help predict the success of a puppy as an assistance dog.

Leading the study is Dr. Brian Hare, professor at Duke and founder of their Canine Cognition Center. He and his team opened the Duke Puppy Kindergarten in 2018, a residence for Canine Companions puppies that doubles as a research facility. Dr. Hare needed student support and received an overwhelming response with over 500 students expressing interest in helping with socialization, puppy sitting and training.

Student volunteers take puppies on outings to different areas of campus and the surrounding community to guide them through seemingly simple tasks to help determine the impact of different traits and socialization experiences on the puppies.

Arriving at the Duke campus at 8 weeks old, the puppies stay until they are about five months of age. “This is a period of time when dogs have rapid brain growth and when research might be able to assess which puppies have what it takes to graduate as a Canine Companions assistance dog,” says Dr. Hare.

Duke University has embraced the project with open arms. Beyond the opportunities for research, the administration, faculty and students agree that having puppies on campus is good for the mind and spirit.
